Search Made For Missing Transatlantic Plane

Steamer Reports Plane Wreckage Seen In Atlantic

Spanish Destroyers Search for Plane in Which Franco and Three Companions Left Spain for New York by Way of Azores Last Friday; One Report Says Flare Seen 400 Miles South-southeast of Cape Race, Nfd.

Horta, Azores, June 24.—As today were on, Horta was still without word of Major Ramon Franco and his three companions on their aeroplane flight to New York by way of the Azores, the Spanish authorities to-day dispatched destroyers and aeroplanes to scour the sea between the Spanish-Portuguese coast and the Azores.

DESTROYERS SEARCH

Madrid, Spain, June 24.—Alarmed by the disappearance of Major Ramon Franco and his three companions on their aeroplane flight to New York by way of the Azores, the Spanish authorities to-day dispatched destroyers and aeroplanes to scour the sea between the Spanish-Portuguese coast and the Azores.

The Spanish Government was particularly eager to run down a report from the British merchant ship Gredlen which stated its crew had seen plane wreckage floating in the sea about 100 miles from the Azores. There were no persons aboard.

As soon as the report was received the Ministry of the Navy dispatched five destroyers from Ferrol, with orders to patrol the district northeast of the Azores in the hope of finding the wreckage, the identity of which was not established definitely by the Gredlen.

WRECKAGE REPORT

Madrid, Spain, June 24.—The military radio station here received an unconfirmed report of the finding of wreckage of a plane about a hundred miles off the Azores. There were no persons aboard.

It was believed here the wreckage was that of the plane of Major Ramon Franco and his three companions, which has been missing since some time Friday night.

The report has been received in some quarters with reserve.

MESSAGE FROM SHIP

A communication issued by the military radio gave the information that it had picked up at 11:40 a.m. (2:40 (Concluded on Page 15)

TRAIN HITS BUS AND KILLS FIVE

Sheffield, Mass., June 24.—A man and five children were killed and several other children injured at Ashley Falls this afternoon when a train struck a bus taking a party of children to a camp near here.

The man was the driver of the bus. It was reported several of the injured children were in a critical condition in the hospital at Great Barrington.

SIXTY CARS OF BERRIES WILL ROLL FROM SAANICH

Twenty Per Cent Increase in Strawberry Shipments Credited to Ideal Season; Processing Plant Commences Operation This Afternoon; Local Prices Take Upward Turn.

Sixty cars of the famous Saanich strawberries are expected to be shipped to prairie markets this season, as a result of the ideal growing weather experienced since the crop came to fruition. Including to-day's shipments, twenty-eight cars have been dispatched from the modern pre-cooling plant. All marketing points report cars to be arriving in perfect condition. Prices have been satisfactory.

PRICE INCREASE
Last year the three island co-operative bodies shipped forty-nine cars. The enhanced harvest this year, following early Spring estimates of a reduced crop, is attributed by leading growers to the recent rains, followed by several cloudy days.

The local wholesale price was raised this morning to $2.50 per crate, and several hundred crates were sold as soon as they arrived from the fields. For the last week the housewives of the city have enjoyed supply at $2 a crate.

The new processing plant, expected to go into operation this afternoon, will handle all the fruit which the three co-operatives can supply.

BORDER LIQUOR NOT THERE FOR ONTARIO USERS

Provincial Police Leader Finds Little Short-circuiting at Detroit River

Windsor, Ont., June 24.—A clean bill of health was given the Essex County border exporters to-day by Alfred E. Cuddy, deputy commissioner of the Ontario Police.

Short-circuiting of liquor in this district has been reduced to a minimum, he said. "There is probably a little of it, but certainly not much," he asserted.

After another check of the export docks of the immediate Windsor area, the deputy commissioner reiterated his belief there was no gun-toting in or around the Canadian wharves by United States rum runners or their henchmen.

The authorities here are in accord with Cuddy in that regard. They do not believe the rum runners are carrying guns or operating armed boats to Essex County docks or waters, but they do believe certain of runners are receiving armed protection after they reach United States waters with their contraband cargoes.

QUICK AT LA SALLE
La Salle, once the premier exporting centre of the Essex border, was visited yesterday by a representative of the Canadian Press. All was quiet. Several boats were tied up and had been there indefinitely. The fast craft had gone down stream to Amherstburg. On a few men were around, but the exports had been cut to the vanishing point. The chief complaint of the liquor men seemed to be concerning an alleged lack of interest by the Canadian Federal authorities in connection with the supposed invasion of Canadian waters by United States prohibition enforcement boats.

One of the men at the Bay Vignaux dock put it this way:
"It seems they can come into our waters whenever they feel like it and no person can do anything about it."

BOAT RIDDLED
La Salle men said a bullet-riddled boat lying inshore there had been shot up two weeks ago near Fighting Island, in Canadian waters. The crew was identified as a scout boat for the rum runners and had never been used for actual shipping purposes, it was claimed.

BOOTH FUNERAL PROCESSION IS SEEN BY THROGS

Cortege Composed of Salvation Army Groups in London Mile Long

London, June 24.—By Thomas Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.—One-quarter of London's mighty traffic was stilled or diverted into other channels to-day when the remains of General Bramwell Booth were taken to lie beside those of his father and mother in the Abney Park Cemetery, North London.

Overnight the body of the great Salvationist leader had rested at the Army headquarters in the centre of the city. The towers and steeples of the old city churches and great commercial buildings which almost engulf these churches, bore flags at half-mast. At the general headquarters of the Salvation Army, however, the "blood and fire" ensign remained at the mast-head.

General Booth has gone to glory, it was said. He has gently insisted by those who were closest to him, so there is no cause for weeping. The same spirit was shown in the arrangements for the great procession, marshalled on the Thames Embankment. It spread nearly for a whole mile, the length of this sweep of riverside.

GROUPS OF FLAGS
The only change from the sober conventional dress of the Salvation Army's men and women participants were little clusters here and there of flags of the Army drawn from all nations and all bearing white streamers. Following each bevy of flags was a band.

An immense concourse of people gathered to watch the procession, drawn for a space from their offices and markets in those rabbit warrens of finance and commerce of which the Bank of England and the Royal Exchange form the centre. They beheld the procession with most respectful interest.

It was a remarkable pageant in honor of one man and was all the more impressive for its simplicity.

BANK CRIME GETS LASHES FOR YOUTH

Vancouver Magistrate Sends Arthur Thomas to Prison For Five Years

Self-confessed Robber Has Nothing to Say When He Faces Court

Vancouver, June 24.—A sentence of five years in the penitentiary and ten lashes was imposed by Magistrate H. C. Shaw in the city police court here this morning on nineteen-year-old Arthur Thomas, who held up and robbed the Grandview Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here last Tuesday morning.

"You have pleaded guilty to a very serious crime, one which might have led to murder," the magistrate said. "It is a wonder murder was not committed. Have you anything to say?"

"I don't think so," replied the youth, who was very pale.

"As I say, you have committed a very serious crime, and in determining the punishment I must consider not only what is necessary for you but to deter other youths who might consider crime."

"Therefore I must sentence you to five years and whipping. You will receive ten lashes under the supervision of the medical officer of the penitentiary."

CONVENT NEAR MONTREAL BURNS DURING STORM

Four Firemen Injured Fighting Flames at Convent of Sacred Heart

Montreal, June 24.—The convent of the Sacred Heart at Saint-Amand, near here, known all over the American continent for its educational facilities, was destroyed by fire which broke out yesterday afternoon when the building was struck by a bolt of lightning. The loss is estimated at close to $1,000,000, while the insurance carried amounts to only $200,000.

Four firemen were injured in fighting the blaze and one of them is in a serious condition in a hospital here. All those in the building, including twenty-two convalescent nuns, escaped to safety.

HEAP OF RUINS
All that was left of the convent to-day was a smouldering mass of ruins, charred stones and timbers.

The convent school had been closed several days ago for the summer holidays and only the nuns remained. Many valuable paintings and decorations were carried out of the burning structure by volunteer citizen workers.

WALLS FELL
The fire started about five o'clock in the afternoon and raged until past midnight. The roof, floors, and then the walls crashed down successively as the valiant fight of the firemen, drawn from Montreal and districts close to it, was checked by a bolt of lightning. The loss is estimated at close to $1,000,000, while the insurance carried amounts to only $200,000.

Blatchford, M.P. for East Edmonton, has received from Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior. There are some thirty-five acres in this section, which is wanted by the city for athletic park purposes.

PANIC AND THEFTS WHEN BIG CROWDS ABOARD DESTROYERS

London, June 24.—The London Daily Sketch to-day said many were injured and some fainting when a crowd of several thousand inspecting a group of destroyers got out of control on the Trafford Wharf at Manchester yesterday.

There were so many aboard the ships one nearly caped, when the crowd rushed to one side between the muzzles of guns. Nurses and ambulances were sent for to treat numbers of fainting women and slightly injured children.

The warships were considerably damaged by meddlers whom the sailors and police were unable to control.

One person was pushed overboard, but was rescued.

RAILWAYS ASK CITY BEAR PART OF INTERSWITCH

$30,000 of $50,000 Cost Should Be Shared By City, Rail Board Told

Is Difference Between Level Crossing and Overhead Track

Arguments on a proposal that the city of Victoria share equally with the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. $50,000 of expenditure on the overhead line to be built for interchange of the Songhees Reserve were presented to the Board of Railway Commissioners this morning.

Judgment was reserved for more particulars to be submitted on construction costs.

The total cost of the interchange is estimated at $50,000. But for the city's objection to a level crossing the track change could have been made for $20,000, counsel for the railway companies stated and on these grounds they submitted, it was only fair to ask the city to share the extra cost.

H. S. Pringle, City Solicitor, opposed the proposal, saying the city had not directly made the application for the interchange, and it was not city industries alone that would benefit.

The commission, which faced a list of eleven cases in Victoria this morning, consisted of S. J. Maclean, assistant chief commissioner, and Calvin Lawrence.

C.P.R.'S CASE
J. E. McMullen, C.P.R. counsel, submitted that the board in deciding the apportioning of the cost should bear in mind that a great deal of traffic would be taken from the C.P.R. and level going back. The interchange meant the C.P.R. would throw open its doors to its private sidings and other facilities. The new track would be partly on C.N.R. lands and partly on E. & N. lands and also across a city street. The portion of cost should not exceed that which went over C.P.R. lands, he claimed.

WOULD SHARE EQUALLY
A. Fraser, C.N.R. counsel, pointed out the original plan, calling for a level crossing, would only have entailed Mr. Gale has been co-operating whereas the one finally approved calling for an overhead track on Johnson Street would cost $50,000.

FRASER FARMERS NEED NOT BATTLE THE RIVER THIS SEASON

Vancouver, June 24.—Far from there being a flood in the Fraser this year, A. D. Paterson, one of the leading farmers of the Delta, employed a pump to flood part of his land last week about the time of years groups of farmers are usually patrolling the dikes.

For five hours he pumped 2,000 gallons an hour, completely covering three acres of his household garden, so that it was necessary to wear wading boots to go to the barn.

Flags In Ottawa Are At Half-mast For Ex-Minister

Death of Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding in Eighty-first Year Removes Figure Who Had Great Influence on Canada's Development for Decades; Fight Against Illness Lasted Almost Five Years.

Ottawa, June 24.—Canada to-day mourns the death of Rt. Hon. William Stevens Fielding, one of her most distinguished sons, whose battle for a return to health, started almost five years ago, ended at 10:25 last night.

Telegrams pouring in to-day bear witness to the widespread regret over the loss of the Dominion's great Finance Minister of former years.

The death of the statesman cast a gloom over the city in which he had lived through so many years of his political activity. All flags in Ottawa are flying at half-mast.

Following a conference of relatives and intimate friends to-day, it was decided the body would be buried in Ottawa. The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 3 p.m. No decision has been reached as to whether it will be a state funeral. Announcement as to that probably will be made later in the day.

At first it was suggested the interment be made in his native province of Nova Scotia, but the family decided the last resting place should be beside that of his wife and daughter (Mrs. J. A. Cameron) here.

SUFFERED STROKE
Last Friday Mr. Fielding suffered a stroke and it was seen the end could not be long delayed. His eyesight had failed and he was bereft of speech and the family which gathered around him in his Charlotte Street home felt it would be only a matter of hours until the life of the aged statesman would cease. His hope was held out by Dr. G. S. McCarthy, the family physician, and when the end came it did so following a gradual and visible enfeeblement.

Mr. Fielding had long passed the allotted span of life and was in his eighty-first year, more than forty years of this life having been spent in the service of Nova Scotia and Canada.

He left public life as he had entered it—poor in pocket, but rich in ideals and rich in a record of honorable, upright and self-sacrificing service to his country.

During the almost five years of his fight against illness, he never lost his cheerfulness and when from all parts of Canada friends, often of opposing political views, called at his home on Charlotte Street to grasp his hand and to wish him well, they found a cheerful man they had known in former years. His entertaining conversation and happy reminiscences continued almost to the time his voice finally failed.

The stroke last Friday was the last of a number of such attacks.

When death came Mr. Fielding was surrounded by his intensely loved family, Florence M. and Zillah R., who had resided with him, and Mrs. G. W. F. Hodgins, of Ottawa, and his son, Lieut. Henry C. Fielding, a veteran of the Great War.

Montreal Area Was Swept By Great Storm

Montreal, June 24.—Sweeping down from the Laurentian Mountains shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a storm of cyclonic intensity crossed Montreal to dissipate itself on the St. Lawrence. In the terrific blow several lives were lost by drowning and fatalities also ensued earlier in the afternoon as persons were driven to water in search of coolness.

The climax to eight sweltering days came as thunder crashed and lightning crackled and rain began to fall. Damage was heavy. Innumerable telephone and other poles were blown down barns were turned over, automobiles upset on highways and fires started by bolts of lightning.

Highway travelers from the north who managed to reach Montreal told of heavy damage between Lacute and St. Eustache. Automobiles were overturned and great oak trees were uprooted and tossed around as if they were made of paper.

LUMBER MILL STRIKE IS ENDED IN AUSTRALIA

Melbourne, June 24.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—The protracted strike of timber mill workers in Australia has been ended as a result of a conference which hammered out an agreement in the form of a compromise between the two previous awards of the federal arbitration court.

All union workers will be taken back into the mills and the 48-hour week has been retained in some cases, the 48-hour week being adopted in others.

The strike resulted in a drastic tie-up of building operations and its ramifications spread through other construction trades.

Is Your Wife your Business Manager?

If you can answer "yes" to that question, you are fortunate. But if you cannot answer "yes," you ought to spend three or four evenings thinking over your family's financial position in the event of your death. Then you should write instructions for your wife to follow regarding the conduct of the family's affairs, should necessity compel her to assume the burden.

When you have discovered what a task this is, it should lead your thoughts naturally to the idea of some financial provision which will insure her at least a certain definite income for life—one that cannot be seized for debt, nor the principal be lost or dissipated.

If you both live beyond 55, it can be arranged for the income to be paid to you jointly.

Fourth Sea Lord Of Britain Says Arms Reduction Coming

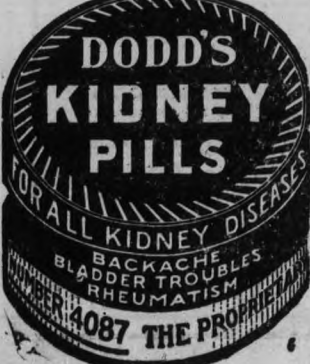

Barrow, Eng., June 22.—The launching of the submarine Poseidon at the Vickers Armstrong naval construction works yesterday was the occasion for some remarks regarding the recent Daves disarmament proposals by Vice-Admiral Vernon H. S. Haggard, Fourth Sea Lord.

Possibly both the navy and the armament builders faced the prospect of hard times, he said, after his wife had christened the undersea war vessel.

"Ambassador Daves the other night had some hard things to say about naval officers, and how he would not leave them to cut down armaments," said the vice-admiral. "Possibly he was quite wise. He said our business is to produce yardsticks, whereby we are to measure the relative values of ships of the same class and to leave it to the statesmen to use the yardsticks, which I think will be a far more difficult job, for the relative needs of each nation."

SUPPORT FOR B.C. INDUSTRY IS STRESSED

Members of Vancouver Trade Board Engineering Bureau Visit Cement Works

Steady Progress and Efficiency of Plant Is Subject of Speaker's Comments

"We should pay more visits to British Columbia industries. We cannot see too much of our industries and witness the progress they are making and the high state of development which has been attained. I am pleased to see the fine way in which this plant is kept, and this reflects great credit on all concerned," declared Frank Sawford, vice-chairman of the engineering bureau of the Vancouver Board of Trade, at the conclusion of a visit made by members of the bureau to the plant of the B.C. Cement Company at Bamberton Saturday.

The visiting party which numbered about twenty, inspected the departments of the Bamberton plant under the direction of Edwin Tomlin, managing director of the company; Henry Anderson, works manager; J. H. McIntosh, assistant superintendent; C. S. Williams, chief chemist; W. R. Penman, chemist; D. G. Clog, timekeeper; and A. J. Cameron, draughtsman.

The quarry, the laboratory and coal pulverizing plant were visited, and the workings of each explained. The party gathered for luncheon at the village hall when Mr. Sawford tendered thanks of the Vancouver board to the B.C. Cement Company. Mr. Tomlin and Mr. Anderson spoke on behalf of the company, telling of the establishment of the cement industry in the province twenty-five years ago and stressing it as an "all-B.C." industry.

VISIT BENEFIT

Following luncheon the visitors crossed the inlet to Benvenuto, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Butcher. The provincial boiler inspectors, A. W. G. Clarke and G. W. Ledingham, of the British Columbia Concrete Company; G. S. Eldridge, of G. S. Eldridge & Company, mining engineer; City Building Inspector A. A. Bird; Ernest Redpath, of the Vancouver Engineering Works; E. R. Gilroy, manager of Evans, Coleman & Evans; J. T. Coult, of Camell, Laird Company; H. K. Dutcher, of Dutcher, Stines Company, consulting engineers; J. W. Gold, of the Canadian Liquid Air Company; P. P. Brown, mechanical and electrical engineer; and H. N. Fynn, secretary of the engineering bureau of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

Reaching Bamberton by way of the Naimah ferry steamer Princess Elaine and motor coach, the party returned to Vancouver by the new Sidney Stevenson ferry route.

Audit Bureau Of Circulations Marks Up Gains

Toronto, June 24.—"In the Audit Bureau of Circulation we have an organization which measures up to the requirements of President Hoover," said E. L. Thomson, president of the bureau, referring to Mr. Hoover's recent address in which he said the test of "our whole economic and social system is its capacity to cure its own ills."

Mr. Thomson was addressing the directors here. Recalling that the bureau was organized by Canadian and United States publishers, advertisers and agents who recognized they had a common interest in the conduct of publishing and advertising upon the biggest standards.

Mr. Thomson said the bureau had kept its houses in order entirely without interference of or threat of interference on the part of government authorities.

"Our only policeman has been our own moral principles and determination to abide by the rules we have set up," he said.

The A.B.C. rejoiced in the prosperity of Canada, he said, and was proud the publishing industry of Canada and its great advertisers were playing an important part in this Empire-building programme.

CANADA MOURNS PASSING OF RT. HON. W. S. FIELDING

For twelve years Premier of his native province of Nova Scotia, for fifteen consecutive years Minister of Finance of Canada, and after a lapse of ten years, again Finance Minister for a period of almost four years, Fielding, who was a statesman, a patriot and a statesman, left a record that is unique in the political history of Canada.

When Wilfrid Laurier gathered together his cabinet of provincial Premiers following his elevation to power at the head of the Liberal Party in 1896, his choice for the Finance Department fell to the lot of the Prime Minister of Nova Scotia. That the selection was a most happy one is best demonstrated perhaps by the fact that when twenty-five years later Sir Wilfrid's successor in the leadership of the Liberal Party was charged with the responsibility of office, following an opposition period of ten years, Mr. Fielding was again called upon to head the Ministry of Finance.

The quarter century involved had proved the most important period in the history of the premier Dominion of the Empire, and in all that had made for the political and economic unification of the country. William Fielding, in his long life, had played a most conspicuous role.

PREFERRENTIAL TARIFF
Future historians probably will point to the introduction of the British preferential tariff in 1897 as the outstanding achievement of Mr. Fielding's career. It gave fresh impetus to Canada's growing trade, and in its application, a year or two later, provided the basis for the unification of the rapidly growing British Commonwealth, a problem that was already regarded as pressing for solution among the academically inclined.

Moreover, the inspired Rudyard Kipling to write one of his best known poems: A nation spoke to a nation. A queen sent word to a throne: Daughter am I in my mother's house. But mistress in my own.

The gates are mine to open. As the gates are mine to close. And I set my house in order. Said our Lady of the Snows.

RECIPROCITY DISCUSSION
But as epoch making was the introduction of the British preferential tariff, Mr. Fielding himself regarded the negotiation of the Franco-Canadian commercial treaty negotiations at Paris in 1907. Mr. Fielding negotiated commercial arrangements with Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan during 1909 and 1911.

In 1907 he visited Great Britain and floated a Canadian loan on better terms than had ever been obtained till then by Canada.

In 1922 Mr. Fielding was one of the Canadian delegates to the cattle embargo conference in London.

TRADE TREATIES
On his resumption of the portfolio of Finance when the present Liberal administration assumed office following the general election of 1921, Mr. Fielding negotiated two new trade treaties with France and Italy, both in 1923. In that year he was one of the country's representatives at the League of Nations sessions at Geneva.

NEWSPAPER WORK
Like many men who have risen to high rank in the world of politics, the beginnings of William Stevens Fielding's career were modest with the smell of printer's ink. Entering the employ of The Halifax Morning Chronicle, a paper which up to that time had provided Nova Scotia with two Premiers in its founder, Joseph Howe, and a subsequent editor, William Annand, Mr. Fielding passed the formative years of his life in an atmosphere of politics, rarefied by a high tradition of fine achievement. The stately Province Building in which the brilliant former editor, Joseph Howe, had won his fight for responsible government was just across the way from the dingy building housing The Chronicle.

It is to be surmised that the youthful Fielding frequently looked up from his case to contemplate the historic pile and possibly to dream of the time when he should follow in the footsteps of his predecessors. But the fact is that by studied industry he rapidly won promotion and at an early age even in those days of personal journalism was playing a leading part in shaping the policies of the Government of the province.

FIRST ELECTION SUCCESS
From that time onward his star continued to increase in magnitude. In 1892 he contested his first election, standing for one of the Halifax seats in the provincial election of that year. For a time following the election issue was in doubt, but it was finally determined that the budding Premier had won by a very small margin. A few months later he became a member of the Cabinet without portfolio and, constantly gaining in influence, was shortly thereafter the undisputed leader of the Government headed by Hon. W. T. Piper. Mr. Piper was a brilliant young lawyer, but he had no particular flair for politics and from an early date endeavored to induce Mr. Fielding to take over the reins of office. But the young editor was just as obdurate in insisting that he lacked experience on the floor of the House and that Mr. Piper should carry on.

In 1894, however, Premier Piper took the situation in his own hands and tendered his resignation to the Lieutenant Governor with the request that he call upon Mr. Fielding to form a Government. Then he walked down to The Chronicle office and informed Mr. Fielding of what he had done. Tradition has it that he handed his resignation to the editor of The Chronicle instead of the Governor, but that is not borne out by the records.

FORMATION OF CABINET
But while Mr. Piper adhered strictly to the constitutional practice, some of his colleagues apparently were not so inclined and when Mr. Fielding called on the Province Building to inform the members of the defunct Piper administration that there was no need of any other member of the Government resigning and that Mr. Fielding was merely assuming the vacant chair at the head of the table. But like his predecessor, the young Premier insisted on resigning and, winning his point, drew up a slate which failed to include all his colleagues of the previous administration.

Chief among Mr. Fielding's achievements as Premier of Nova Scotia was the introduction of coal mining legislation which paved the way for the formation of the Dominion Coal Company and an ensuing very substantial increase in coal royalties. The state of the provincial revenues was of necessity his chief concern. It was that which prompted the demand for a revision of the terms of Confederation and it was probably due to the successful way in which he addressed himself to the problem that he laid the foundations for his long career as Finance Minister in the wider field of Federal affairs.

DESIRED NO TITLE
Perhaps the most striking characteristic of William Stevens Fielding was his disinterestedness. Any honor that the attainment of a Canadian certainly was his, but he was not all and in the days when his countrymen recognized the practice of conferring knighthoods, he preferred to remain plain Mr. Fielding. It was only in 1923 that he was given the title right honorable by being made a member of the British Privy Council. Nor was he interested in the accumulation of wealth. When he stepped down from the office of Minister of Finance in 1911 he found it necessary still to work for a living. He promptly returned to his first love, journalism, and first with The Montreal Daily Telegraph and subsequently with The Journal of Commerce continued to exert an important influence on Canadian affairs, until called upon to resume the responsibilities of Finance Minister.

ABLE DEBATER
Mr. Fielding was not an orator in the old sense of the term, but he was a consummate master of debate and a most effective campaign speaker. He possessed a rapid fire delivery which carried his audience with him, usually at a high pitch of enthusiasm. Always considerate of the rights of others, he made few, if any, personal enemies. Perhaps his one obsession was the man who was inferior to him in politics. He often said he was proud of the fact that Nova Scotians took their politics seriously and considered that Nova Scotia's remarkable contribution to the public life of the Dominion was largely due to the nightly discussion of the affairs of state about the stoves of the country stores throughout the province.

Mr. Fielding was the recipient of a remarkable tribute on the occasion of his seventy-fifth birthday, when in the heat of an election campaign the citizens of his native city of Halifax, irrespective of politics, united to do homage to one who had given them a life of self-sacrificing service.

Mr. Fielding was born in Halifax, N.S., November 24, 1848, a son of Charles Fielding, and his wife Sarah (Ellis) Fielding, both of English descent. He was educated in Halifax, and married in 1876, Hester, daughter of Thomas A. Rankine of St. John, N.B.

Four daughters and one son were born to them. The son, Lieut. Henry C. Fielding, served overseas in the World War. One of the daughters, Janet, who was the wife of John A. Cameron of Ottawa, died in 1925.

Mr. Fielding was a governor of Dalhousie University, Halifax. He received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from Acadia University and honorary degrees of LL.D. from McGill, Queen's, McMaster and Dalhousie.

He was president of the St. George's Society in his native city for some years. He was a Baptist and member of the Rideau Club, Ottawa, the Ottawa Golf Club, the Ottawa Country Club, the Halifax Club and the City Club of Halifax.

A GREAT STATESMAN

HISTORY WILL GIVE TO THE HON. W. S. Fielding a foremost place in the roster of eminent Canadian statesmen. His public career, which began forty-seven years ago in Nova Scotia, was distinguished by a record of notable achievement which has had very few parallels, if any, in the political annals of this Dominion. For twelve years he was Premier of Nova Scotia, retiring from that post in 1896 to become Minister of Finance in the cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, an office he held during the entire fifteen years of the Laurier administration.

Mr. Fielding was Sir Wilfrid's first lieutenant and played a leading part in promoting the success which marked the regime of the great Liberal chieftain. It was he who introduced the British preferential tariff in 1897, which was destined enormously to increase trade between Canada and Great Britain, and was subsequently adopted by the other Dominions. In fact, his zeal and ability in the field of commerce and better understanding between the various parts of the Empire won for him a world-wide reputation, and it is no secret that he was offered titular honors by his overseas, which he declined.

Surpluses so frequently marked the Fielding budgets that they became almost commonplace. Canada's progress from 1896 to 1911 commanded the attention of the world, yet Mr. Fielding was able to provide for the growing financial needs of the country, as far as Federal requirements were concerned, with an expenditure which, for the greater part of his term, was less than one hundred millions a year, and which at its maximum was less than one-third of the ordinary annual expenditure to-day.

Mr. Fielding negotiated the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States which was rejected by the Canadian electors in 1911. His object in this was to prevent a tariff war, and it was not long before events proved the soundness of his course and that Canada had turned down a good bargain. The Maritime Provinces, in particular, never have recovered from the rejection of the pact which would have given them free entry into the populous New England states with their natural products.

On the defeat of the Laurier Government in 1911, Mr. Fielding engaged in journalism, which was his original calling, and in which he had been very successful before entering public life. During the war he supported conscription, differing, for the first time, with his old chieftain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He re-entered public life with the return of the Liberals to office in 1921, resuming his old portfolio of finance, a post he held until failing health forced his withdrawal from public life in 1925. He thus had served as head of the Dominion's finance department altogether for twenty years. Many Liberals regarded him as the logical successor to Laurier as the leader of the party when Sir Wilfrid died in 1919. Perhaps if he had been a younger man the mantle would have fallen upon him, provided also the anti-conscriptionist elements in the party could have forgiven his attitude to conscription during the war.

Mr. Fielding possessed tremendous energy. His capacity for work was astonishing. His knowledge of administrative detail was so large that there was scarcely a phase of the public business with which he was not intimately familiar, whether it had to do with his own department or not. He was the readiest debater in Parliament, able at all times without any preparation to meet arguments affecting Canada's affairs, whether they concerned trade and commerce, finance and industry, land administration, conditions in the Yukon or the fisheries of the Atlantic. Above all, his public career never was marred by the faintest whisper of scandal, and among the loftiest tributes to his great services as a statesman and his worth as a man will be those which will flow from his political opponents, especially from Sir George Foster and Sir R. L. Borden, who knew him best and who, like himself, came from the provinces on the Atlantic which have contributed so many illustrious leaders to the public life of Canada.

A SURPLUS AND A FAMINE

THIS WORLD IS ORGANIZED IN A queer manner, when you stop to think about it. In the agricultural regions of the United States a great many farmers are facing financial loss because their crops are too big. They have grown more wheat than they can sell; the price has tumbled and only some artificial stimulus will bring it up again.

In China, meanwhile, a good many millions of people are facing actual starvation because their crops are too small. There simply is nothing for them to eat. Unless outside help comes, thousands of people will die of hunger.

Too much in one place—not enough in another. Nobody, thus far, seems to have thought of tying the two regions together so that the ills of both can be alleviated.

THE PUNISHMENT FITS THE CRIME

IT IS NOT A VERY PLEASANT JOB FOR a judge to have to sentence a youth of nineteen to five years in the penitentiary with ten lashes; but in meeting out this punishment to the young man who last week held up a branch of the Royal Bank in Vancouver Magistrate Shaw has taken the proper course. As he pronounced his judgment this morning he reminded the boy that the crime of which he was guilty might have resulted in murder, and that it was necessary for the bench to take into consideration not only the culprit, but also other young men who might feel disposed to turn criminals. "With that in mind, therefore, he very properly refused to permit sentiment to influence his decision."

There should be no ground for complaint about the manner in which justice is dispensed in the courts of Canada. We are next door to what has developed into the most sinister crime organization modern times have known. So far not many of the Capone gang have risked their health in this country. Most of those who have are finding time hanging heavily upon them in Canadian jails. But it is essential that there shall be no weakening on the part of our courts in dealing with gun-toting bandits. The lash should be prescribed in every case.

A WELCOME ANNOUNCEMENT

IT IS GRATIFYING TO LEARN through Hon. James A. Robb that the Dominion Government already has commenced negotiations with the governments of the other Dominions with the object of developing inter-Empire trade on a new and more aggressive basis.

It is too early, of course, to speculate upon the outcome of these proposals; but it should be safe to assume that a working arrangement will be reached. Apart from the need of a greater measure of economic co-operation between the various parts of the Empire, it is necessary to show to the world at large that the British Commonwealth of Nations is as united commercially as it is sentimentally.

There is ample reason for supposing that Great Britain and the other Dominions will welcome the proposals which the Canadian Government has made. The balance of trade with the Empire as a whole is largely in our favor, and the sister countries naturally would prefer a more even exchange. Considerable adjustments would have to be made as far as such Dominions as Australia and New Zealand are concerned, and certain economic prejudices would have to be worn down; but if the Empire note rings true, all difficulties should quickly vanish. In the case of Great Britain, of course, our products are not taxed; they enter free and some of them enjoy certain preferences. Under such an arrangement as is proposed, therefore, it would be for Canada to move by either abolishing the import duty on all British goods entering this country, or by making very substantial reductions in the preferential tariff at present in operation.

This proposal to develop Empire trade obviously is the most effective answer this Dominion could give to the increase in import duties it is expected the United States will impose. It would be economically foolish for Canada to launch a tariff war with her southern neighbor. She would be certain to get the worst of it. Nor is it necessary that we should look to Washington for a pattern for our fiscal policy. Our field for new markets is the Empire. It does not mean that we should spurn the commodities from other countries. That is not the way to build up trade; but it does mean that by trading on a larger scale with British countries, we could erect a still greater business structure which should materially strengthen the ties of kinship that already bind the Commonwealth.

There should be no real division of opinion in Canada on this vital subject. It is not a party matter and should not be treated as one. We have heard a good deal of lip service to the Empire from certain quarters in the past which became silent when there has been a suggestion of reducing import duties on British goods. In view of the conditions which Canada may soon be called upon to face, however, there ought to be whole-hearted support for the King Government's proposals.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

RESERVE BOARD AND RESERVE BANKS
The New York World

For some time the big operators in the Street have been showing more attention to the money market than was once their custom, but what has especially perturbed them during the past week is their discovery that the threat of devaluing money is not confined to Washington, and that it is not the Reserve Board but the Reserve Banks which are now initiating the pressure for still higher rates. They can no longer comfort themselves with the idea that only a small group of wilful men are attempting the futile task of arresting the operation of economic law. They now know that the much-criticized Reserve Board, instead of leading a crusade against speculation, is actually serving as a buffer between the speculative markets and the Reserve Banks.

NEW UNITED STATES PAPER CURRENCY
The New York Sun

Distribution of paper currency of the new and smaller size will begin early in July. Delivery of new bills of the old size stopped in April. As a result paper money now in circulation is a little less presentable than usual and will fall to an even shabbier level in the next few months. One bit of information should be spread as widely as possible to prevent any public suspicion of the new bills. The new paper money will show no little silk threads; such silk fiber as it contains will be so interwoven in the texture of the paper that it cannot readily be discerned. In making over its paper money the Government took every precaution against the counterfeiter; the little silk threads were felt to be a temptation to the lawbreaker. Those who expect to handle the new paper currency should know of this; otherwise they may look with suspicion at the first examples that reach them.

A THOUGHT

AMONG THE IMMORTALS

Art and morality cannot ignore one another; but when they do so neither approaches its noblest forms. The profoundest judges will never include a picture, however beautifully painted, which is sympathetic with moral evil, among the "immortal" works of art.—Philip Kerr.

Loose Ends

The cigarette finds itself under fire again—which doesn't worry it—for it has been there before—and always come out on top—after a romantic career which started with Columbus—and is still going stronger than ever.

By H. B. W.

PROHIBITION, WHICH for some years has appeared to be the most interesting subject in the world to all Americans, and without which many humorous magazines would have difficulty in publishing at all, is finding a rival as a subject of polite conversation and learned discourse. This is no other than the cigarette. After a hectic and not altogether respectable career, the cigarette finds itself again in difficulties, or at least threatened difficulties. Following a burst of popularity exceeding anything in history, the cigarette is the subject of several bills, now before state legislatures, where it is felt this form of amusement should not be encouraged among the very young. At the same time members of the United States Senate are drafting legislation which would bring the cigarette under the food laws so that the state would have a closer check on its antecedents and its health-giving claims.

THESE THINGS, however, are nothing new to this amazingly important little factor in modern life. It is used to the efforts to hold up its progress and so far has conquered them all. The history of the cigarette, indeed, is a fascinating one, as research has recently shown. A writer in the New York Times has ascertained that Columbus discovered the cigarette within a few minutes of discovering America, and which of them was the more important discovery is a matter on which cigarette smokers may disagree. Anyway, on the island of San Salvador Columbus found the natives smoking, and it was recorded that they "wrap the tobacco in a certain leaf in the manner of a musket formed of paper, and having lighted one end of it, by the other they suck, absorb or receive the smoke inside with their breath." This was the first cigarette.

WHILE TOBACCO quickly caught the fancy of Europe, it was in other forms. Spain took to cigars. England embraced Sir Walter Raleigh's pipe, but the cigarette found favor in Turkey and Russia, whence returning Britblers brought it home to the Crimea. War, rolling their way, while the seventeenth century was the era of the pipe, the eighteenth of the snuff, the nineteenth of the cigar, the twentieth dawned as the great opportunity of the cigarette. It was quick to grasp the opportunity. But before this century dawned the cigarette had its opposition. Thus, while the United States, which had decorated its business offices and the halls of Congress with cuspidors and presented 11,000 cigars to General Grant after a Civil War victory, decided that the cigarette was a deadly sin.

IN THE '90s the cigarette became a form of moral turpitude. Banks and offices prohibited it. Ghostly stories of the cigarette were spread by men from which the scent of cigars never departed, and who considered chewing tobacco as necessary as their daily bread. It was whispered that cigarettes were doped with opium to fasten the habit upon the young, and the paper wrappers contained arsenic. A male who smoked a cigarette was regarded as debasing his manhood. And respectable women simply didn't smoke, that was all; at least not publicly. If a respectable woman had somehow contracted this mania, she indulged in her boudoir, with her blinds drawn and the door locked. If her husband discovered it he sent her home to her mother or jumped off a pier like a gentleman. People talked glibly of "cigarette insanity," though there never was such a thing and the horror grew. A dozen states banned the cigarette by law.

THE CIGARETTE manufacturers didn't know as much then as they do now. They met these attacks feebly by slipping gayly colored pictures of actresses, soldiers and baseball players into every package, which were collected avidly by small boys, just as people now gaze at packer hands to win a bridge table refrigerator or steam roller. With only these weapons to defend it the cigarette still marched on.

THE CAMPAIGN against the cigarette reached its climax in 1906 when a bill to abolish it was introduced into Congress, and it was barred from the United States Navy. Nothing, however, could stop its triumphal progress and by 1910, for the first time, more cigarettes than cigars were sold in America. The war finally gave the cigarette respectability, for the Allied soldiers fought with it as their valued ally. To-day almost thousand cigarettes are smoked every year for every man, woman and child in the United States, a total of one hundred and five billion. It is calculated that if they were laid end to end they would stretch forty-seven times to the moon as well as gridding the earth with nine lines of ten American men are said to use them, and in New York a careful estimate showed that almost half the women there also were confirmed smokers, as against five per cent a few years ago. Cigarette smoking in the twentieth century thus is on the same footing as the taking of snuff in the eighteenth. It is interesting to wonder whether it will pass into the same oblivion some day in favor of some other still more zealous way of consuming the divine weed.

SMOKING BY women has become an accepted and undisputed feature of our social scheme, but secretly honest men don't like it. They buy cigarettes for their wives, supply them with expensive gasoline lighters and produce matches wherever a light is required, but down in their hearts they hate it. Somewhere in their consciousness of the generation now middle-aged, there is a feeling that it is all right for men to do these things, but that women are too good to indulge in them. The men of that aging generation were brought up with the deep-seated belief that women are superior creatures, and our whole life has been modeled on that assumption. We have granted woman equal rights, but privately we have never changed our attitude with her except in unimportant things like citizenship. In everything worth while we have always known our inferiority.

KIRK'S WELLINGTON COAL

IF THIS belief is wavering, if the next generation is going to decide that women shall have quality and nothing more, then indeed has the rule of civilization begun. Then will come the deluge. As I find modern womanhood increasingly scented with the aroma of tobacco, which used to be confined to the coarser half of the race, from whom you didn't expect much anyway, I am not sure that the deluge hasn't started already.

POSTPONING OLD AGE

To the Editor:—According to the press another serum is discovered which has "shown promising results" in the treatment of blood-vessel ailments of old age.

I have never yet heard of a serum being introduced that had not "promising results," and the discoverer of this new commodity is a Greek doctor from the other side, called Lysedra, who maintains a well-stocked farm in Arizona. We know too well what such an institution stands for in the way of animal torture. Dr. Lysedra has injected young donkeys with human serum and old men with donkey serum. He sometimes very severe. Anyone who understands the horror of the process of drawing serum from the body of a horse rendered artificially diseased in order to produce diphtheria antitoxin knows that the donkeys suffer in just the same way when their blood is drawn off and injected into guinea-pigs, which must suffer also. The injection of diseased organic matter into the blood of humans or animals could not have any but detrimental effects.

The alleged object of all this nasty business is to rejuvenate the old, and we have had a number of pseudo-scientific experimenters who have dangled a promise of longevity before us as an excuse for their experiments. Among the most prominent have been Brown-Sequard, Starch and Voronoff. One example of Starch's experiments must suffice, for in 1921 a man of sixty-seven years, who is said to have paid $700 ($850) for a rejuvenation operation in Vienna said he, felt so enthusiastically alive that he intended to lecture on the matter at the Albert Hall in London on "How I was made twenty years younger." He was found dead in bed on the day preceding the lecture.

The Northwest Moose convention week closed Saturday night with Moose bands playing in front of their hotels. The crowd on Yates Street became so dense that a squad of police was called and the thoroughfare between Douglas and Blanshard Streets was closed.

proposed lecture—still at the age of sixty-seven.
The Graphic of April 27, 1929, contained an article, "The Menace of Dr. Voronoff," by M. Beddow Bayly, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., who has written and lectured on this question many times. He points out the fallacies of Voronoff's assumption and the dangers of grafting monkey or other animal glands into the human body at the price of losing characteristics essentially human. Voronoff's ghastly operation on the chimpanzee, "Nora," and her death in consequence, are said to have been on account of its cruelty and its immorality.

Mrs. Carrie King, well-known American journalist, was Voronoff's first woman patient. She was quite well, but curious about results. She stated that a year ago, after her operation, she felt 1,000 years old, instead of sixty-four; was miserable, weak, helpless, could hardly walk and was nearly blind. She longed for the days of her youth, so recent yet so far away. Her friends could scarcely recognize her, so changed was she. The press has just recorded her death.

The famous French racehorse, Rebealis, also operated on, died a week after the experiment. There is no proof that Voronoff's operations have prolonged the lives of animals any more than they can prolong the lives of men, nor is there any likelihood that better breeds of animals will result from these experiments. We shall always find failure so long as the history of experimentation is based on false deductions, commercial greed, gross cruelty and unscientific reasoning.

The warning against this trifling with nature cannot be too strongly given and those who have listened to any specious suggestions or arrogant assumptions of commercial gain, or length of years, must face the fact that they will imperil not only their physical welfare but the welfare of their souls.
A mass meeting of protest was held in London last year, against the permission given to Voronoff to lecture in England. Out of the many speeches but three comments can be singled: "In the name of all the decent people of England I protest against this infamy," (Hannan Swaffer); "Voronoff is by way of being a competitor with God," (Rev. B. G. Bourchier); "A decent age seems much superior to a man who can associate himself with such practices," (Henry S. Salt).

The prizes awarded in connection with the convention were presented Saturday afternoon by Reginald Hayward, M.P., at the Royal Athletic Park, where the drill teams from the visiting lodges staged their drill competition after the big parade through the city.

Vancouver, with 970 points, won the ladies' drill contest, Seattle with second with 940 points, Bremerton third with 920 and Spokane fourth with 910. The men's drill contest was won by Columbia Legion No. 170 with 975 points. Portland Lodge No. 991 was second with 967 points; Spokane third with 960 points and Seattle fourth with 927 points. The winning team consisted of twenty-one cowboys under Frank Crosby.

Mr. Hayward in his address said that the citizen of Victoria had enjoyed the convention as much as the delegates and Victoria hoped that such good fellows as the Moose had shown themselves to be would return here soon.

The regular monthly meeting of Court Canada Excelsior No. 1, Juvenile A.O.F., will be held in the A.O.F. Hall on Friday next at 7:30 p.m. for the election and installation of officers. CONTEST STOPS, VISION OF BIG PRIZE VANISHES

Competitors in Line For $25,000 Grouse Mountain Award Get Disappointment

Officials Drop Contest When It Is Questioned as a Lottery

Visions of a $25,000 prize have been shattered and disappointment has been freely voiced among the scores of competitors who were in line for the grand prize in connection with the Grouse Mountain Highway and Scenic Resort competition.

Announcement was made by the officials Wednesday that the contest would be abandoned and with the publication of the winners for last week no more money would be distributed.

The decision to end the campaign follows seven weeks of what is reported to be successful operation during which thousands of persons from all parts of British Columbia and many from outside points enclosed $1 and a coupon in the hope of winning one of the thirty weekly prizes ranging from $200 to $20 and at the same time becoming eligible for the $25,000.

AN INCENTIVE

As it was first necessary to win one of the weekly prizes there was an incentive for the unsuccessful competitors to continue with their weekly dollar entry fee until they got on the list of names from which the $25,000 prize winner would be selected. The competition started in May with the first coupon published May 6 and weekly thereafter, with the thirty prize winners also announced.

POLICE STEP IN

The decision to drop the competition without the distribution of the $25,000 prize apparently followed questions being raised as to its legality. Reports from Vancouver of June stated that Robert Wilson was charged with operating a lottery in connection with the "community drive" for the Grouse Mountain Chalet. In defence it was claimed that no money realized from the sale of tickets in the scheme was used for prizes. It was claimed that if the police were in full possession of the details they might change their minds as to its being a lottery. City Prosecutor W. M. McKay stated the police were informed of all the facts and had made the arrest on his advice.

DOUBTS AROSE

The announcement of the company to abandon the contest states that the officials of the company were advised by authorities consulted prior to the campaign that it was in order. Subsequently doubts arose as to its legality and charges were laid. The officials of the company had no desire to carry on a campaign contrary to the law or in conflict with the will of the authorities. The sole purpose of the campaign, they said, was to advertise and popularize the Grouse Mountain Highway and Scenic Resort. The announcement states that unfortunately it will be impossible to complete the campaign as was originally intended by payment of a grand prize.

FAMOUS ENGLISH NOVELIST DEAD

Ellen Thornycroft Fowler, Author of "Concerning Isabel Carney" Passes

London, June 24.—Ellen Thornycroft Fowler, who had a well-earned reputation as a novelist among the older generation, died at Bournemouth this week-end. "Concerning Isabel Carney" was perhaps her best known work. She had a quiet humor and fluent, if somewhat restrained, descriptive ability and her writings at one time were in much repute with old style nonconformists.

Miss Fowler was the elder daughter of Lord Wolverhampton, better known as Sir Henry Fowler who died in 1911 and who was formerly a great pillar of Liberalism.

WOMEN WANT TO BE "PERSONS"

Appeal of Five Alberta Women Before Privy Council; England Interested

London, June 24.—The British Isles are manifesting interest mixed with amusement concerning the appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council here by five representative women of Alberta from the decision of the Canadian Supreme Court that under the British North America Act women are not eligible for appointment to the Canadian Senate.

The appeal, which probably will be heard next week, hinges on the term "persons" as applied to those eligible. One writer recalls how Bob Sawyer drew upon himself the reproaches of landlady when he referred to her as a "woman" in the Pickwick Papers. "Yet, nowadays, it seems the Canadian women desire to be known merely as 'persons,'" he adds.

Another commentator recalls Pooh Ba's exhortation in "The Mikado": "It is very painful to me to have to say 'How do ye do' to little girls—young persons. I am not in the habit of saying 'how do ye do' to anybody under the rank of stockbroker." The Liverpool Post, however, seriously expresses wonder why it was necessary to invoke a ruling of the Privy Council on a matter which admittedly could be settled by the Canadian Parliament. It seems needless and a costly fuss, says the Post.

Will Have Fine Time at Cadboro Bay; Two Addresses at Meeting

There was a good attendance of members of the Victoria Women's Institute at their regular meeting Friday. The speaker was Miss A. B. Cooke, provincial secretary, I.O.D.E. In her talk on the educational work of the I.O.D.E. she told of the work undertaken and accomplished. She told of the bursaries given yearly and of the many young men and women who were helped with their education and finished their courses.

Another treat enjoyed was meeting Miss Ackley of the extension service of the Department of Agriculture of the State of New York, who told briefly of the work of the home bureau unit which correspond closely to the Women's Institutes. The organizing of home bureau units was progressing rapidly in all states and means.

At the commencement of the meeting a standing vote of sympathy was given Mrs. Crocker, a former president for two years, in her loss of her husband.

Many reports of work done by the institute committees were given, chief among which were reports of the May and June concerts given in the Tubercular ward of Jubilee Hospital, and of the garden party given last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Latham. This was a great success in every way.

A report of the social afternoon held on June 7 was made by the convener. At this meeting a demonstration in basket making was given by Miss Stark. Some beautiful finished articles were also shown.

It was decided to hold the annual basket picnic at Cadboro Bay on Wednesday, July 10, leaving the city at 10.30 a.m. and spending the day on the beach, when races and sports will be held for both old and young.

In response to the invitation to visit the Experimental Farm at Sidney with the members of the V.I. Horticultural Association, many members will attend on Friday, July 5. Those wishing to attend are asked to communicate with Mrs. Urquhart.

In response to a letter from Mrs. V. MacLachlan, superintendent of the W.I., explaining the progress of the Obituary endowment fund, it was decided to raise some money toward this fund this year and endeavor to complete the $100 in two years.

Plans for the fall work are being formed by the new ways and means committee, include an exhibition of women's work and tea to be held in the institute rooms sometime in October.

THREE WOMEN DROWN IN LAKE

Lightning Strikes Boat and It Overturns in Quebec Lake

St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., June 24.—Miss Mabel Price, aged thirty-five, a lecturer in history at MacDonald College here, sister of Gertrude, and Miss Madeleine Foy of St. Anne de Bellevue, were drowned here yesterday when a motor launch was overturned during a violent storm which swept over Montreal and vicinity.

Miss Gertrude Price came here Friday from North Carolina to spend her holidays with her sister.

The three women with Miss Foy's father, were cruising in the Lake of Two Mountains, when the storm struck the light boat and turned it completely over. Mrs. Foy reached shore, but the three women were trapped under the boat. The bodies were recovered.

Rebekah Meeting To-morrow.—The regular monthly meeting of Colfax Rebekah Lodge, No. 1, will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. The initiatory degree will be conferred and held. Are You Near-sighted?

There are several kinds of "near-sight" (Myopia), each of which requires its own manner of treatment for its correction. To reduce all cases to one standard by measuring the error and giving lenses according to this measurement is wrong. The newer method takes into account cause and effect, strains and imbalances, and habits of vision, and aims to give by rational and scientific means that measure of relief required. YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

SUMMER BRINGS SOME UNUSUAL PROBLEMS

In these days when the children are freed from school and spend all their hours in the open, they are subject to dietary indiscretions that can't always be blamed upon the mother.

Neighbors have the hospitable habit of showing their liking for children by feeding them, and so when Mrs. Brown bakes cookies and the appetizing odor floats into the house of Mrs. Jones, she is tempted to let the children have them for their lunch.

Surprise is just as delightful to the child, and then she feels that Mrs. Brown realizes, too, that children mustn't eat between meals, and her mother's arguments in this respect are immeasurably strengthened.

Why should her carefully worked out routine, her sensible arguments to the child be shattered in order that a neighbor or relative shall be pleased and flattered by the attention she gets from the child when she feeds him?

Outsiders have no right to criticize a mother's method of managing or feeding her family. They should adhere to it, and further it. If Mrs. Brown wants to treat the children to cookies she should give them to them. Mrs. Jones and suggest that the children have them for their lunch.

Very often she says to the children, "Now you must ask your mother if you can have it, which puts poor mother in the position of being a dandy villain if she says no in the face of their mute pleading."

Of course, no one is trying to prevent even for a moment that a child's health is going to be undermined by a few cookies, or a treat of candy. The most this can do is to spoil their appetites for the next meal, which is bad enough in most families. The chief harm is the practice of making light of the mother's rules of conduct—over-riding her discipline.

The mother maps out a routine for her child with the best of knowledge of what is best for him. She knows that he eats little or nothing when he has been fed between meals. She knows that he likes candy, and she knows that he has to have them. She knows that he has to have them. She knows that he has to have them.

Popular Star Has Leading

H. B. Warner, Lois Wilson and Tully Marshall Also Have Roles

The many admirers of Monte Blue will be delighted to know that the athletic screen star has a great role in his new aviation picture, "Conquest," in the making of which Warner Bros. have gone to no end of care and expense. "Conquest," which will show at the Capitol Theatre for three days this week, is an adaptation of that stirring story, "The Candle in the Wind," which will be remembered for the gripping and unflagging interest it contained for its readers. It seems an ideal story for the movies, and it is easily to be imagined that the care taken adds greatly to its effectiveness on the screen.

WEIRD SCENES
A striking feature of "Conquest" will be in the weird beauty of many of its scenes. Those laid in the dreary Antarctic wastes showing the wreck of the huge monoplane among the icy hillocks are said to be particularly impressive. Incidentally, Monte makes his supreme triumph in this picture. H. B. Warner, Lois Wilson, Edmund Breese and Tully Marshall are featured. Eve Unsell did the adaptation and C. Graham Baker the scenario.

With Betty Bronson in Lead-

Laid in Cabarets of N.Y.

"The Singing Fool," Al Jolson's second special Warner Bros. picture, is now here at the Dominion Theatre where it will play all this week. "The Jazz Singer" seemed the last word in Jolsonian magic, but it is the consensus of opinion that this later story of the loves and losses of a singing waiter is even more universally appealing. The glamor of the life of Big Town cabarets and theatres is created with startling naturalness. The photography is a triumph for that veteran of the camera, Bryon Haskin, and Lloyd Bacon, son of the famous author and star of "Lightning," has outdone even himself, in his direction. It is one touch of nature makes the whole world kin, that touch is surely found in the simple, touching story of "The Singing Fool."

TOUCHING STORY
The tears are well balanced by the smiles, however, and peace comes at last to the troubled soul of the singing fool, in the love of another woman, once a cigarette girl at the cabaret.

The cast includes Betty Bronson, Josephine Dunn, Ed Martindel, Arthur Housman, Reed Rogers, David Lee and Robert Emmett O'Connor.

Robert Frazer Imagined Him-

Later Was Taken on Stage

A boyish prank resulted in Robert Frazer getting his first theatrical engagement—and no one was more surprised at this outcome than young Bob himself. It was summer school vacation. On the strength of the parts he had played in college entertainments he applied to three or four theatrical companies passing through his home town. But he was told he didn't stand a chance because he hadn't had real stage experience. One day during vacation he conceived the idea of printing a theatrical programme and inserting his own name in the cast. He drew up the design and printed the programme. Until recently, he divided his time between the stage and the movies. He is now a Tiffany-Stahl leading man and makes his first appearance under the colored Gen trade mark in the hero role of "The Scarlet Dove," now playing at the Playhouse Theatre. Others in the all-star cast are Lowell Sherman, Margaret Livingston, Josephine Borio, Julia Swayne Gordon and Carlos Durand.

DEATH ENDED ARGUMENT

Bellingham, Wash., June 24.—An argument between fishing companions over the rotation of the earth ended when Frank W. Brown, seventy, a rancher, seized a rifle and shot twice, killing Henry Briggs, thirty, an Indian, the deed resulting in Brown's being held in the Whatcom County jail here to-day on an open charge. The shooting was done Friday night in the wilds of Orca Island, San Juan County. Knowledge of it did not reach here until Sheriff Girard brought Brown to Bellingham late Saturday night to lodge him in the jail.

Screen Attraction Is "Beware of Blondes" With Splendid Cast

With a stage presentation entitled "Naomi of the North," the Coliseum Players, under the direction of Raymond "Toby" Leitch, will open the current week at the Coliseum Theatre to-night, commencing at 8:20 o'clock. There will be stage performances every evening during the week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

In announcing the current attraction to his audiences at last week's performances, Mr. Leitch said that "Naomi of the North" is one of the finest plays in his repertoire. It has been produced with great success in many other cities, and has always been popularly received. With the settings of the story laid in the Northland, the play promises to please all who have a taste for the romantic and unusual. The plot is a good one, and the usual there will be plenty of humor running through the hour-and-a-half production. The players will all have roles to suit their respective talents, and can be relied upon to give good performances. Those having roles will be Miss Esther Todd, Miss Ada Daniels, Miss Leone Webber, "Toby" Leitch, Forrest Taylor, Paul Wallace, Louis Cluff and Lorus Bagley.

ON THE SCREEN

"Beware of Blondes" is the screen attraction at the Coliseum. The plot revolves around the attempt of two gangs of jewel thieves to secure a valuable emerald, in transit from San Francisco to Honolulu. The hero is entrusted with the gem and warned to "Beware of Blondes." He knows it is somewhere upon the boat among the large number of golden-haired beauties, is "Blonde Mary," a famous crook who operates single-handed. She is more to be dreaded than the Cosigan gang, who are also after the "loot."

The youth reckoned without Mary, a role assumed by Dorothy River. She is a blonde, who goes after her man and gets him. In her is seen all the earmarks of the "Blonde Mary" against whom the messenger is warned. However, at times even the audience loses its suspicions of Mary, only to be awakened into a realization that the youth is playing with fire. The climax comes as a surprise in a quaint dive in Honolulu presided over by Portuguese Joe, a fence.

The monthly business meeting of the Victoria group of Toc H will be held on Thursday evening, June 27, at 8 o'clock in the Board of Trade Building, 521 Bastion Street.

Greatest Tennis Spectacle Opens At Wimbledon

Pick of World's Net Stars Seek Championships

Rene Lacoste, Great French Player, and Holder of Singles Championship, Only Notable Missing; Dr. Jack Wright, First Ranking Canadian Player, Defeated in First Round To-day by Wilbur Coen, 2-6, 9-7, 6-4, 6-2; Jean Borotra or Henri Cochet Favored to Win Title; Helen Wills Picked to Retain Women's Crown.

London, June 24—The British championships, greatest of all tennis spectacles, opened on Wimbledon's famous courts to-day, with an entry list in excess of 200.

With five titles to be awarded, in the men's singles and doubles; women's singles and doubles and the mixed doubles, virtually every tennis player of any note was ready for the two-week grind, starting with the first round of the men's singles to-day. The only notable absentee was Rene Lacoste of France, men's singles champion last year. Lacoste decided he would have to apply himself to his business at Paris and let his title go by default.

Experts expected the men's title to go to one of the great Frenchmen's compatriots, Jean Borotra or Henri Cochet.

WRIGHT BEATEN

Dr. Jack Wright, ranking No. 1 player of Canada, went down to defeat in the opening round before the brilliant playing of Wilbur Coen of Kansas City. The scores were: 2-6, 9-7, 6-4, 6-2.

The Canadian player started off in whirlwind fashion to take the first set easily at 6-2. Coen, however, got going in the second, and after a long, hard fight managed to pull out the set at 9-7 after some rallies. The third set was also hard fought with the U.S. star winning it 6-4. In the fourth, Coen dominated the play and won the set 6-2 to take the match three sets to one.

"Big Bill" Tilden, ranking United States tennis star, opened his campaign for the British singles title by trouncing H. V. S. Dillon of Ireland, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Flashing samples of his play of younger days Tilden literally swept the Irish star off the famous centre court. He raced through the first set with the loss of only the third game, kept up the same speed in the second and then slowed up long enough to permit his opponent to break through for two games in the third set.

E. G. Chandler, former Harvard net ace and United States intercollegiate titleholder, won the first set from Wilmer Allison, member of the United States Davis Cup team, 6-2.

After dropping the first set to Chandler, Allison rallied and swept through the next two, 6-3, 6-3 to take the lead of two matches to one.

Allison continued his fine display of tennis in the fourth set, winning from Chandler 6-3 to advance into the second round. The match score was 2-6, 6-3, 6-3.

H. W. Austin, British star, disposed of J. T. S. Gilbert, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4. J. D. P. Wheatley went into the second round at the expense of I. De Takats, whom he downed in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Henry Cochet got a good work-out in his opening match with A. C. Grosley of Great Britain, the French net wizard, won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Francis T. Hunter downed R. Miki of Japan in straight sets, after the Japanese had carried the second set to deuce. The score was 6-1, 7-5, 6-3.

Following Tilden and Dillon in the centre court, J. C. Gregory, leading English hope, beat H. K. Lester, former Cambridge star, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5. George Lott, third ranking United States player, gave a great exhibition of tennis to dispose of E. Du Plaix, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

The young American had in his strokes working in perfect order and after the first set won almost at will.

FRENCHMEN WIN
The French placed J. Brugnon and C. Boussus in the second round, when the former defeated Stiles of Great Britain, 6-7, 7-5, 6-1, 7-5 and the latter took the measure of N. H. Latchford of England, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0, 6-3. U. L. DeMorguio, the Italian hope, walked over G. R. Ashton in straight sets, winning 6-3, 6-0, 6-0.

Y. Ohta, Japan's most serious contender for the British title had a hard time defeating P. Lacroix, but finally won out in five sets, 4-6, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

H. Kiessenschroth accounted for the elimination of E. A. McGuire, but it took five sets. The score was 4-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Bramme Hillyard defeated A. Zerandini, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

John Van Ryn, young star from Orange, N.J., made a clean sweep of A. Gentzian of France, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2.

Jean Borotra, one of the French contingent, thrashed G. R. Sherwell of Great Britain, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

O. G. N. Turnbull defeated S. M. Hadi, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Seller Winner Of Coast Net Crown
Berkeley, Cal., June 24. — Robert Seller of San Francisco won the men's singles championship of the Pacific Coast yesterday by defeating Gene Stratford in a five set duel at the Berkeley Tennis Club. The scores were 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 1-6, 6-4. It was the first major title taken by Seller, a junior at the University of California.

Stratford, former National intercollegiate doubles champion for the University of California in 1925, was completely outplayed in the first two sets, but he braced and took the third set.

After the ten-minute rest period Stratford opened up with the first show of his hard driving and net attacking game. He looked like a winner in this set, taking it with the loss of but one net. He weakened, however, as Seller's game strengthened.

Schmeling-Paolino Clash Heads Busy Week In Fightdom

Spanish Woodchopper Reigns 6 to 5 Favorite for Bout With German Heavyweight at Yankee Stadium Thursday Night; Max Is Unknown Quality of Two Fighters; K. O. Christner to Meet Porat in Semi-final of Milk Fund Show; Many Other Topnotchers Will Fight During Week.

New York, June 24—The boxing industry looks to New York this week for its outstanding attraction—Max Schmeling's fifteen-round battle with the brawny Basque, Paolino Uzcudun, at the Yankee Stadium Thursday night.

The bout, which tops the card for the annual milk fund charity fistic carnival, may go far toward the eventual selection of a logical successor to the heavyweight throne left vacant by Gene Tunney's retirement last year. This will be true specially if Schmeling should win decisively.

UNKNOWN QUANTITY
Of the two, Herr Max is the unknown quantity. Paolino has amply demonstrated what he can do to the real extent of Schmeling's ability, especially as to whether he can stand up under a continuous body attack.

If Schmeling can beat the Spaniard beyond question and then whip Jack Dempsey, would stand between the Teuton, and pretty general recognition as heavyweight champion.

Odds at present find Paolino on the long end at 6 to 5. A rather general belief prevails that even Schmeling's terrific right-hand punches will have little or no effect on the Spanish woodchopper who has met them all and never been dropped.

The semi-final bout of ten rounds will bring together two of the hardest hitting heavyweights in the business—K. O. Christner of Akron, and Otto von Porat, the Norwegian who now makes his home in Chicago.

MANY FINE ATTRACTIONS
Although the Schmeling-Paolino fight is the biggest shot of the week, there are plenty of other headline attractions on the national schedule for the next six days.

Among the top-notch heavyweights, George Godfrey, giant negro from Leipsville, Pa., Johnny Risko of Cleveland and Young Stribling of Macon all are to be seen, and it is hoped, given action. Stribling battles California Jack Lee, a rugged heavy, in a ten-round welterweight struggle, opening the outdoor season at Mills Stadium, on Thursday night. Godfrey's opposition is a tough veteran of the Indianapolis trial horse, Chuck Wiggins, at Cleveland, Tuesday night. This bout also is set for ten rounds.

Jackie Johnston Will Meet Cuban Flash To-night

Toronto, June 24—Jackie Johnston of Toronto will carry a four-pound advantage into the ring to-night against "Kid Chocolate," Cuban sensation, when the pair meet here.

Louis Cutierrez, manager of the "Kid," announced on his arrival here yesterday with his party that he expected the dusky battler to come in at 122 pounds. Johnston will weigh in at 126.

With Johnston's supporters claiming a real chance for their battler and with the flashy Cuban providing a major box office attraction, Canadian attendance records for an outdoor show will probably be broken to-night.

Victoria Scores Win Over Duncan in Interclub Match After Keen Fight

The two strongest tennis teams on Vancouver Island met at Duncan yesterday in an interclub fixture which turned out to be the closest and most exciting played on Duncan courts for some time.

The Victoria Lawn Tennis Club won the tourney by fifteen matches to nine from the Duncan team. No less than nine extra set battles were seen.

Duncan's men secured an even break in the men's singles, each club winning three. Victoria's first advantage was secured when their women players won every single but one. In the men's and women's doubles the visitors won four out of six and the mixed event was even, each winning three matches.

N. R. Staples and D. M. Gordon, playing the first singles, were in the limelight, their match lasting for over two hours. The warm day seemed to inspire the veteran Staples. His volleying was a revelation. Gordon on the other hand was settled and steady, the vicious length and kept his opponent from getting into a damaging position.

Gordon took the first set at 10-8, but Staples came right back to win the second at 6-4. The third set found both players playing a more cautious game. Gordon's consistent driving got him home at 6-3.

HOCKEY WINS
Norman Corfield established a good lead in the second set of his encounter with Hocking and led at 5-3, but at this point slackened off and lost the set and match at 7-5.

Reg Corfield scored Duncan's first win when he defeated Eric McCallum in one of the longest battles of the day. McCallum took the first set at 6-4, but Corfield made a determined stand in the second, and won a deuce set and finished strong in the third.

C. H. Raymond defeated Arthur Peel to secure Victoria's third victory, while Frank Kingston and Art Howe were the other local winners. Howe defeated Merton after losing the first set. The scores were 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

MARJORIE LEEMING BEATEN
Probably the most interesting match of the day was the defeat of Marjorie Leeming by Mary Campbell in straight sets.

Miss Campbell played her usual consistent game of driving with pace and precision, while Miss Leeming seemed to have trouble in keeping the ball in play.

Miss Anna Kier won the only ladies' singles for Duncan, when she defeated Miss Lawson in two long sets, 10-8, 6-7, 5-7.

Miss Doreen Swayne and Mrs. Ismay were Victoria's winners in two other ladies' singles, both of which went into three sets. Miss Swayne won from Miss Bond, while Mrs. Ismay's opponent was Miss Dawson-Horne.

Gordon and McCallum won from Kingston and N. Corfield in the first (Concluded on page 9)

RUSSELL PLAYS WELL
The star of the losers was undoubtedly George Russell, who played magnificently alike on defence and attack. He was here, there and everywhere and seemed a magnet for the ball, while he never allowed Len Davies any chance to get a foot on the ball.

Trotter was a little behind and put up a stellar game against the visitors' left wing, so much so, that they got little chance to shine. Hogg worked tremendously hard and completed a fine line.

Coulter and Kull were missing from the forward rank and a newcomer to Vancouver in Bird was played out at fullback by the Royals.

Bird had been playing with Lovell's Athletic, the team for which he had been playing since he left the Victoria team. He is finely built and showed that he will be a fine addition to the team.

McDougal was splendid in all he did, while Bradbury of St. Saviours, who took Coulter's place was very good, and scored a brilliant goal. Turner was his own clever self and dribbled and passed in his usual clever style, but Kerr seemed unable to get the better of Dennion and Moses Russell, and was hardly ever in the picture, except for flashes in the second half.

Fifteen minutes before the time for kicking off, the stand and bleachers bore an animated appearance and the crowd was still pouring into the ground.

Prior to the start of the game the Victoria Welsh Choir, a talented group of vocalists, entertained the crowd with selections. The Welsh team was first to appear and got a big hand when they played the first half.

A few minutes later, received a rousing reception. The game started seven minutes late awaiting the Royals.

Len Davies next got right past the Royals, panned the Royals, who were caught in a grand centre from McDougal, in magnificent style. Neale had a fine chance with Lindsay off of goal but shot high over and the same player next fired a first-time just by the post.

Pressing continually hereabouts the Welshmen panned the Royals into their own goalmouth, but their shooting was too high. Lindsay punched one drive from Jennings behind for a corner, but Davies headed Cook's flag kick outside.

Touring Welshmen Forced to Limit To Defeat Royals

Minus Seven of Their Regulars, Dominion Football Champions Are Just Beaten 2-1 in Thrilling Match; George Russell Plays Magnificent Game for Royals; Warren and Len Davies Net Goals for Welshmen; Gray Pulls Off Sensational Saves in Tourists' Goal.

Vancouver, June 24—Forced to take the field with no less than seven of their regular players absent through injury, Westminster Royals, Dominion soccer champions, played so well at Athletic Park on Saturday afternoon before a crowd of 6,000 people that the touring Welsh team's winning sequence was almost broken, and the boys from the "Land of the Leek" had to put in all they knew to come out victorious by a 2-1 score. It was one of the most pulsating games seen in Vancouver for years, and kept the big crowd thrilled right to the last foot of the whistle.

The game concluded the Welsh team's programme in British Columbia, and they left Saturday night on the C.N.R. for Edmonton, where they play on Monday night. During their stay at the coast the visitors played four games and won them all with a goal average of 14 against 1. While they have now played ten matches on the whole tour, winning them all and scoring 46 goals against 6.

It was if anything too hot for football on Saturday, and with the ground hard and the heat lively, the Welshmen did not show the clever football they produced last Monday night. At the same time full credit must be given the Royals for the way they stood up to their more experienced opponents, and never allowed them to settle down. Wherever a Welsh player went, there was a Westminster man, and very often two to stop him.

Wherever a Welsh player went, there was a Westminster man, and very often two, to stop him.

BAD FEELINGS
Unfortunately a little feeling crept into the game in the second half and Referee Craig had to call the players together and issue a warning, which calmed things down. Gray kept goal finely for the winners and had no possible chance with the shot which beat him, while Moses Russell was a grand defender and often saved his side. Lumberg had a bad day and often missed his kick, while on other occasions he was brilliant in clearing.

The halves all played finely, both in attack and defence, and were the strongest part of the team. Keenor played his best game on the coast and Benjamin and Jennings gave his great assistance. Warren was the pick of the attack and once more kept up his record of scoring in every game he has taken part in while in Canada. Neale worked tremendously hard, but got bad bump over the eye when he and Russell banged heads, and it affected his play. Len Davies did not have such a bright night as he had on Friday, for George Russell shadowed him all through the game, and only on one or two occasions did he get a chance, one of which he snapped up in brilliant style. Jones was a grand defender, but was nothing like the tricky artist he was in Nanaimo, although he put over some telling centres.

With Strang and Anderson unable to appear at fullback the Royals played in Watson of St. Andrews and played Milburn as his partner, and right well did the pair perform. Watson was coolness personified and kicked grandly, while Milburn simply refused to be beaten. Delaney found that he was not fit to take his place at left half and Rimmer decided not to take a chance with his injured leg, consequently Bill Hogg of St. Saviours was called on for left half and Trotter retained the right half position. Dicky Stobart still being laid up with broken ribs.

Philadelphia Gains Another Game On World's Champions

Al Simmons Hero As Athletics Win Rubber of Series

Great Slugger Hits His Fourth Home Run as American League Leaders Humble New York Yankees, 7-4, Yesterday Before 55,000 Fans; Had Splendid Average of .619 for Five-game Series; Gehrig Poles Out His Twentieth Home Run; Pittsburgh Wins Third Straight From Chicago.

That hysteria in and about the Yankee Stadium now is recent rather than current, and the boys are busy checking up the net result, artistic and financial. The Philadelphia Athletics nipped the champions by a 7-4 score before some 55,000 in the fifth and rubber game yesterday, but the really important transaction took place in the counting house. Exactly 184,096 New York fans paid their way at the gate in three days, making the series a complete victory for Edward Grant Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, regardless of what happened to Huggins.

The final game was a triumph for Howard Ehmke, the veteran right-hander, although George Earnshaw had to be called in the eighth to put down a Yankee uprising which threatened to assume serious proportions. The series ended without the appearance of Eddie Rynn, the knuckle ball expert, who never seemed able to fool the Yankees.

The defeated pitcher yesterday was another left-hander and the third Yankee southpaw victim of the series—Eddie Wells. The Birmingham boy's customary wildness showed, but Simmons and Fox made up for this little oversight with successive homers in the fourth. Mule Haas caught the spirit that he hammered Wells's resister, Tom Zachary, for a four-batter within the lot in the eighth. SIMMONS IS HERO

It was Simmons's eighteenth, Fox's thirteenth and Haas's ninth. Simmons might have had an earlier home run in the second when he limped palpably on a triple because of his bad ankle. Now that the Yankee series is over, Simmons may remain out of the game to rest his nether limbs, but the real misfortune for the Ruppert-Huggins combination seems to be that Simmons did not arrive at this decision earlier. Here is what he did to the champions in three days:

At bat, twenty-one.
Runs, ten.
Hits, thirteen.
Total bases, thirty.
Two-base hits, three.
Three-base hits, one.
Homers, four.
Runs batted in, nine.
Batting average, .619.

Lou Gehrig inserted his twentieth homer into the proceedings yesterday placing himself in a tie with Mel Ott of the New York Giants for the major league leadership. The defeat coupled with the 6-3 victory of the St. Louis Browns over the Chicago White Sox, dropped the champions into a tie with St. Louis for third place but this hardly will last.

The Yanks may not be as good as the Athletics, but they remain some better than the rest of the flock. Detroit nosed out Cleveland by 8-7, advancing to within one game of the Yankees and the Browns and Washington won from Boston by 7-1 in other American League engagements yesterday.

The National League campaign on the Sabbath witnessed the third straight victory of the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Chicago Cubs 8-7. The Cincinnati Reds shaded the champion St. Louis Cardinals by 4-2 and the Brooklyn Robins nosed out the New York Giants 9-8 in fourteen innings, giving the day a pronounced Pirate trend. The Bucc led the Cubs by two and one-half games, the Cardinals by three and the Giants by three and one-half.

The Braves completed the National League campaign by taking two from the Phillies, 5-1 and 7-5.

STAD DOLP WINNER OF GOLF TITLE

Crushes Malcolm McNaughton 11 and 10 in Final For P.N.W. Crown

Youngster Slips Badly Before Large Crowd; Mrs. Hutchings' Women's Champ

Seattle, June 24.—Frank Dolp, the Joker-faced putting expert of Portland, Saturday added the Pacific Northwest amateur golf championship to the western crown he already held, when he utterly crushed young Malcolm McNaughton, Lake Oswego, 11 and 10 to play, in the final match at Inglewood.

As a final, Saturday's contest, if it was a contest, formed a disappointing climax to the week of championship play. It takes two to make a golf match, just as it takes two to make a quarrel, and there was only one man playing a whiff of championship calibre Saturday.

Dolp was all even with par for the twenty-six holes played, having twenty pars and three over par and three birdies on his card. He might easily have been several strokes better had it been necessary to bang all his ten-foot putts for birdies, but he seemed to argue, who was the use of banging for birdies when pars were good enough to win?

YOUNGSTER PLAYS POORLY
The nineteen-year-old McNaughton didn't look at all like the same lad who had earlier in the week smothered Dr. Willing and Chandler Egan with his terrific hitting power. He topped half a dozen of his tee shots, pulled mashes after mashes to the traps and was weak time and again with chip shots from the sand. The only club that worked with anything like consistency for him was his putter, which served on several occasions to earn him a half when he seemed hopelessly out of the hole.

A gallery that reached a total of more than 2,500 persons in the afternoon was sadly disappointed when McNaughton failed to deliver more than a few, a very few, of the prodigious drives that had marked his play earlier in the week. Both in distance and in direction Dolp averaged much better than the Lake Oswego lad.

Malcolm apparently found the strain of his first important final too much for him, as he seemed as a stage whizzer throughout the match. His swing, which always did depend on perfect timing and relaxation, got all out of focus and he only hit three or four of his characteristic Big Berthas during the day.

On the other hand, fans who had been accustomed to regard Dolp principally as an iron and putter expert, had their eyes opened. Frankie was laying the wood on the pill to no small purpose and larruping out drives that would have matched McNaughton's best.

NEW WOMEN'S CHAMP
A new champion was crowned in the women's tournament when Mrs. Vera Hutchings defeated Mrs. S. C. Sweeney in a close, hard-fought match, 4 and 2. Both women are from Vancouver, B.C.

Mrs. Sweeney, defending champion, was one up on her opponent at the end of the eighteen-hole morning round, but faltered in the afternoon flight to lose her title to her clubmate.

THE BIG SIX
The Big Six was definitely committed to hard hitting yesterday with the sole exception of Frank O'Doul, in the weekly shoot of the Victoria and District Military Rifle Association at Heals Range on Saturday. Three points behind him came Sergeant Sammy Watson, while Captain G. Holland of the 16th Canadian Scottish took third place with a total of ninety-three.

Miss Nancy Ferguson and the Russian Ballet School will provide dance numbers, while dramatic art will find its exponent in Miss Young and Audrey Nixon. Jimmy Ball May Be Laid Up With Injured Ligament

Winnipeg, June 24.—Jimmy Ball, Canadian Olympic 400-metre star, strained a ligament in his right leg Saturday and may be out of competition for some time. It will be a few days, however, before the extent of his injury is definitely known.

Ball was unable to compete in an interclub meet here Saturday and may have to postpone his visit to Vancouver later where he is to appear early in July.

SEMI-FINALS ARE REACHED

Keen Matches Seen in Annual Championship at Victoria Tennis Club

Play in the annual club championships being held at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club reached the semi-finals Saturday, eleven matches being played. The outstanding matches were the singles match of Bert Flett and E. S. Brown, in the handicaps, the singles encounter of Ismay and Phillips in the club championship and match between D. H. Bird and Eric MacCallum.

Flett won from Brown in three hard sets, 6-8, 7-9 and 6-2. Peter Phillips won a fierce three-set from Ismay after losing the middle set at 6-3. MacCallum experienced unexpected opposition from Bird, who gave a very creditable performance.

Marsh Gordon, disposed of Bob Schwengers in a very easy manner after the latter had put Rayment out of the running in the previous round. Gordon allowed but two games to Schwengers.

Hope Leeming defeated Doreen Swayne in the ladies' open event, which started on Saturday, in an uninteresting game. Miss Swayne was off her game and could not get started on the right road.

The semi-finals have been reached in all events and this week will determine the finalists.

CAPITALS ARE EASY WINNERS

Hand Duncan 13-3 Setback in Vancouver Island League Baseball Game

Victoria Capitals, champions of the Vancouver Island Baseball League, chalked up another victory on Saturday night at the Royal Athletic Park, defeating Duncan 13-3. The Caps played airtight baseball behind the steady pitching of Jimmy Danglefield and after the third inning were away on top.

In the first inning the local nine got off to a two-run lead when two hits and an error let two men cross the plate. In the second Duncan snared two of their three runs when Morgan, the Caps' catcher, threw to second in an effort to catch a man stealing and nobody was there for the throw runner from third scoring. A hit over second base brought the other man home.

A flock of hits and a couple of "monies" gave the Capitals nine runs in the third inning enough to sew up the game. Baldwin, who started on the mound for the Up-Islanders, was chased to the showers in favor of Robertson.

Before the end of the game the Caps had driven in two more counters, while Duncan scored their final run in the sixth inning when Drome lifted one over the centerfield fence.

During the nine innings Danglefield was touched up for seven hits, while he struck out five. Baldwin during his two and two-thirds innings in the box allowed five hits, struck out four and walked five. Robertson allowed three hits and struck out four.

For Summer LIGHT MEALS! a Little BOVRIL Makes a Lot of Difference

Adults Should Drink Eight Glasses Of Water Every Day

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
All sorts of estimates have been made of the value of a human being. In a paper given by Dr. J. S. Elliot, president of the British Medical Association Branch in New Zealand, he said that man possessed enough fat to make seven bars of soap; iron enough to fill a shaker; lime enough to whitewash a chicken-coop; phosphorus enough to make 2,200 match heads; magnesium enough for one dose of salts; potash enough to explode one toy cannon; and sulphur enough to rid one dog of fleas.
Of the approximately eighty elements

AUTO TRUNKS ARE NOW BUILT HERE

New Industry on Oak Bay Avenue Makes Each Trunk to Order to Fit Indi- vidual Car

A new industry has recently been established in the old theatre building at 2013 Oak Bay Avenue. It is called the Victoria Auto Trunk Works, and is under the management of Roy F. Angus and Walter G. Newman. Mr. Angus, son of the late Mr. A. F. Angus of 1383 St. Patrick Street, has recently returned from New York in order to establish himself in this line. Formerly he was connected with the Brooklyn Edison Company's electrical construction department for a number of years. Mr. Newman has only left England some twelve months and is a first class authority on the English system of thorough-built auto trunks, having been connected with this line of business in the Old Country. The firm is manufacturing De Luxe Auto Trunks as a specialty and it may now show a finished product of which Victoria may be justly proud. A feature of the manufacturing end is that every auto trunk is built to the individual car requirements which gives an especially pleasing appearance.

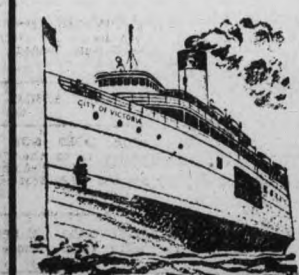

"PINKHAM'S COMPOUND IS WONDERFUL"

Read This Letter from a Grateful Woman

Vanessa, Ont.—"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is wonderful. I have had six children of which four are living and my youngest is a bonnie baby boy now eight months old who weighs 23 pounds. I have taken your medicine before each of them was born and have certainly received great benefit from it. I urge my friends to take it as I am sure they will receive the same help I did."—Mrs. MURTON McMULLEN, Vanessa, Ontario.

UP SHE GOES!

This is what happened at Dupo, Ill., where a new oil boom is in progress. "Shut" a well with 160 quarts of nitroglycerine. The explosion jarred loose the interior well casing and catapulted the long iron tube high in the air, as shown in the picture. The casing broke in mid-air and crashed in two pieces on the drilling shack.

listed by the chemists, at least twenty-nine have been located in the human body. These are carbon, oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, sodium, calcium, potassium, magnesium, chlorine, phosphorus, sulphur, iron, iodine, arsenic, fluorine, silica, manganese, aluminum, lithium, copper, lead, zinc, vanadium, molybdenum, cerium, chromium, lanthanum and didym. Of the latter elements the body contains only a trace. Nevertheless, modern chemical research is beginning to assign to these traces, functions of the greatest importance.

Water is composed of hydrogen and oxygen. The amount of water in the human body varies with the increase in years. Six months before its birth the infant is composed 94 per cent water. At birth the water content has changed to 69 per cent.

When the man is twenty years old the water in his body constitutes 62 per cent, and when he is seventy years old the amount has diminished to 58 per cent. The body of the old man is drier and wrinkled. The water content of man closely approximates water contents as they occur in nature.

An egg has 65 per cent water, meat has 75 per cent, fish has 80 per cent, and milk has 87 per cent.

Some of the tissues of man contain more water than do others. For instance, the brain is 79 per cent water, the kidneys 83 per cent, liver 70 per cent and muscle tissue 75 per cent.

These facts are of the greatest importance since they indicate how necessary water is to the body for the carrying on of its functions. Hence, whenever a person is paralyzed and unable to get water the physician sees to it that water is put in his body by injection or by some other route.

The average man ought to drink from six to eight glasses of water per day, preferably the larger number. The best way to distribute this amount of water is a glass in the morning, before going to bed, a glass at each meal and a glass a few hours following meals.

Big Motor Field Seen in Germany

There are 163 persons per passenger car in Germany, fifty-two in France, fifty in Great Britain, thirteen in Australia and five in the United States.

WELL-KNOWN CITY RESIDENT PASSES

George Dyer Ramsay, of Ramsay Machine Works, Resided Here 39 Years

Victoria yesterday lost one of its pioneer residents and one of its successful business men in George Dyer Ramsay, who passed away at his family residence, 1020 Craigdarroch Road. Born in Kilmarnock, Scotland, Mr. Ramsay was seventy years of age. For thirty-nine years a resident of this city, Mr. Ramsay gradually built up the business of the Ramsay Machine Works, Store Street, until it was recognized as one of the leading firms of its kind in the city. He reached Victoria in 1890, and was first allied with the Albion Stove Works as a machinist. In 1902, he went into business for himself at premises on Johnson Street. Besides being the manager of the machine works he was the president of the Ramsay and Adams Foundry Company.

He is mourned by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. W. D. Hargreaves, of Everett, Washington, and Miss Beth T. Ramsay, of Victoria, and two sons, George and H. Lauder Ramsay of this city. The remains are resting at the B.C. Funeral Parlors. Funeral service will be held on Wednesday at 2:15 o'clock at Victoria Hall, Blanshard Street, with Peter Smart officiating. Interment will take place in Ross Bay Cemetery.

SEEK TO KEEP STATION AGENT AT COBBLE HILL

Residents Offer Objection to Removal Before Rail Board To-day

City Must Pay One-third of Maintenance of Hereward Road Bridge

Residents of Cobble Hill, with C. H. O'Halloran as counsel, voiced vigorous objections before the Board of Railway Commissioners at its sitting here to-day to the removal of the E. & N. station agent at Cobble Hill and the placing of an agent on the north end of Shawnigan Lake instead.

The change would place Cobble Hill in the class of a first station with the nearest agent at Shawnigan. Judgment was reserved by the board until further figures on the amount of business at Cobble Hill Station was presented by J. E. McMullen, C.P.R. counsel.

Mr. O'Halloran claimed Cobble Hill was the centre of population and the logical place to have an agent for the district. He asked for the station to be stayed until the C.P.R. had presented more figures on gross earnings of Cobble Hill. Mr. McMullen submitted figures showing the gross earnings from March, 1928, to February, 1929, to be $18,750.21. This was for traffic in and out of Cobble Hill from point of shipment regardless of its subsequent transportation over the C.P.R. O'Halloran asked figures for 1928 and 1927 be also presented.

Mr. O'Halloran told the board that within easy distance of Cobble Hill was a big district including Mill Bay, Cowichan Station, and in this area there were a large number of wealthy residents who needed to be within easy distance of telegraph and transportation.

Mr. McMullen: "You don't suggest the station will be removed?"

Mr. O'Halloran: "No, but the telegraph will be removed."

Mr. O'Halloran said Cobble Hill was a poultry producing and lumbering centre. Shawnigan was a residential district but not a business district, except for one lumber mill.

Mrs. E. A. McMillan, president of the Cobble Hill Co-operative Association, J. J. Dugan, poultry producer, T. Harper, lumberman, and George E. Bonner, merchant, gave evidence telling of the need of a station agent in the district.

Mr. O'Halloran said, although he was not authorized to speak for them, that the Malahat Board of Trade was also, he understood, in favor of retaining the agent. The Cobble Hill Women's Institute had also passed a resolution in favor of the agent being retained.

Giving reasons for the proposed change, Mr. McMullen said the Shawnigan station was doing the most business. The mill had developed to one of great proportions. Two schools had been erected and there was also a hotel there.

The case stood over for the figures requested by Mr. O'Halloran.

OTHER CASES

In view of the inroads of motor transportation permission was sought for the removal of the caretaker at Cowichan Station and no objection was offered.

Plans were presented and held for further consideration setting out protection at the crossing of Lytton Station.

The application of the Public Works Department of British Columbia for the construction of a level crossing at Atkins Road Crossing on the E. & N. Railway was granted subsequent to forty per cent. being used from the grade crossing fund.

On an application from the C.P.R. the city of Victoria was ordered to bear one-third of the maintenance of the bridge over Hereward Road.

After plans have been approved provision will be made from the grade crossing fund on the application of the Public Works Department of British Columbia for an order authorizing a subway at Gillespie Road on the C.N.R.

A check will be made by the board's engineers as to the cost to be allowed the B.C. Department of Public Works, seeking a grant of forty per cent. of the cost and the work in connection with the elimination of grade crossings of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Mines.

Miss Jessie Porter of Vancouver will deliver a public lecture next Thursday evening on "Axioms of Truth" in the Alexandra Club Hall, Campbell Bldg., under the auspices of the local Absolute Science group.

"Because I love my work and couldn't be happy a minute if I gave it up," Nan caught him up passionately. "That's the reason I won't marry you, Willis. You've said time and again that I had to stop work when I married you, and I simply won't do that. I've spent three years in this office, every working day of my life, and I graduated from college, and I'm not going to throw over my career to get married."

"Your career?" Willis was becoming angry. "That's rather a dignified name for a job as private secretary, isn't it?"

"I'm more than a private secretary and you know it, Willis. You've said time and again that I had to stop work when I married you, and I simply won't do that. I've spent three years in this office, every working day of my life, and I graduated from college, and I'm not going to throw over my career to get married."

"Yes, and then what?" Willis interrupted vehemently. "You'll go right on working for Morgan as his private secretary, or at best, as a female Blake at $50 a week. But please, honey, don't let's quarrel. I love you and I want to marry you. If you love me, you want to marry me and—start a regular, old-fashioned family. Doesn't it sound sane and a little attractive, honey-girl? Your own home, instead of a lighthouse-keeping one-room apartment and an office where you're treated like a servant by your employer's wife. Your own husband to boss around and inspire and make into a big man—as you're now doing for another woman's husband."

As she listened, Nan's face had grown tender and wistful, but at his last words anger flooded her face with rich color and she sprang to her feet, tearing her hands out of his grasp.

"You make me so mad," she stormed, clenching her hands and blinking at him rapidly through tears. "Just when you've got me all mushy and ready to say 'yes' to anything, you have to spoil it all by saying something hateful about—about Mr. Morgan. I don't make fun of you and your boss, accuse you of toadying to him—"

"No," Willis interrupted her quietly, his mouth very grim, "because you know I'm not in love with him. The relationship is purely that of buyer and general manager—"

"Oh!" Nan gasped, retreating from him slowly, her brown eyes growing enormous with horror. "Oh, Willis Todd! How dare you say a thing like that about me?"

Willis rose and followed her, his hands closing firmly upon her shoulders, his eyes not so many inches above hers, narrowing as they searched her scarlet face. "If you tell me it isn't true, I'll apologize. No, I'll never hint at such a thing again."

"Just what do you mean—just what isn't true?" she challenged him furiously, shrugging her shoulders to rid them of his hands, but not succeeding.

run away from it into my arms. You're naturally too fine and good to bear the thought of being in love with another woman's husband. But—love you with all my heart, and you've got to love me that way, or we shan't ever be married. Am I right, honey? All you've got to do is to deny it all—and mean it!"

But he could not go on, with those despairing, horror-stricken eyes fixed upon him. He turned away from her, lurching like a drunken man to the table upon which he had laid his hat, snatched it up and lurching on toward the door.

Nan watched him go, the back of one trembling hand crushed against her mouth, as if to stifle a cry. When the door closed sharply upon him, she ran toward it, leaned against it, panting, her eyes terrible with fright.

"Oh, Willis, come back! Don't leave me alone! You've always been so sweet to me, Willis! You can't be so cruel as to leave me alone now! If you leave me alone, I'll have to think—and I think! Oh, Willis! But her voice was only a husky, terrified whisper that the man who was plunging down the hall could not possibly have heard.

OUTBREAK AT ELLIS ISLAND

New York, June 24.—The New York Daily News says police reserves were called yesterday to quell a rebellion of sixty-five aliens awaiting deportation at Ellis Island.

Although Government officials were silent, reports of the disturbance said the aliens, who had been placed in the guard house, had entered the hall in an attempt to keep them quiet.

While the guard stood in the corner menacing the aliens with guns, Night Superintendent Harvey Sawyer attempted to persuade the prisoners to desist. Meanwhile a call was sent for marine police, who helped the guards to restore order.

Several of the aliens were placed in solitary confinement. Among those who took part in the disturbance were several men sent here recently from the west and described as gangsters.

ESKIMOS THOUGHT ROSS FLEW FROM SUN TO MOON

Sir John Ross, born 152 years ago to-day, was one of the earliest and bravest Arctic explorers, making voyages into the great unknown country north of Canada. He was among the first white men to visit the Eskimos. When Sir John appeared with his sailboat for the first time on one of the bleak shores where the Eskimos lived, the members of the village fled away to the mountains in terror. Later some of the bolder ones crept back and approached the ship, making signs to beg the strange visitors not to destroy them.

Sir John and his men showed the Eskimos they were friendly, and soon the men of the north were not afraid to come to the ship, and the Englishmen even began to learn their language.

One day the chief of the Eskimos asked whether the Englishmen in their strange vessel with the white wings had come from the moon or from the sun, and how soon they intended to fly back again.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Stuffed Rabbit

(Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

By HOWARD R. GARIS

One day Uncle Wiggily was hopping along through the woods, when, all of a sudden, on a green, grassy place he saw a white rabbit. The white rabbit had pink eyes and was looking straight ahead of him through the trees.

Now Uncle Wiggily was a friend with all rabbits, so when he saw this white one, and knew it wasn't one of his own little bunny boys or girls, Mr. Longears called:

"Hello, White Rabbit!"

But the White Rabbit never said a word. He just kept on looking off through the woods with his pink eyes.

"Well, this is queer!" thought Uncle Wiggily, as he hopped a little closer. "I have heard that white cats are hard of hearing so maybe a white rabbit is the same. He may be deaf. I'll call louder."

"Oh, what a pain!" howled the Grator

So Uncle Wiggily called louder:

"Hello, White Rabbit!"

But the White Rabbit never said a word. He just kept on looking off through the woods with his pink eyes.

"This is very, very queer," thought Uncle Wiggily, as he hopped a bit closer and then he saw why it was the White Rabbit hadn't answered. There was a good reason.

"He's a stuffed rabbit!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "It's a toy, stuffed White Rabbit out of a store and some little boy or girl must have left him here after playing with him under the trees. Yes, he's a stuffed White Rabbit. But I'll take him home to my hollow stump bungalow and see what happens. Maybe I'll get an adventure out of him."

The White Rabbit was only half as large as Uncle Wiggily, being about the size of Tangle and Tangle, the cute little girl bunnies. So Mr. Longears had no trouble carrying the stuffed toy under his paw. And off he hopped toward his hollow stump bungalow.

Mrs. Longears was out on the front porch as Uncle Wiggily hopped up the walk, and when she saw him carrying what looked like a new little bunny child, Mrs. Longears said:

"Don't tell me I have another baby?"

"No, this is only a stuffed rabbit I found in the woods," said Uncle Wiggily. "Some little boy or girl left him there after playing with him under the trees. I thought I'd bring him home and put him on our lawn. Then, perhaps, if the little boy or girl passes this way they may see 'their toy' and take him."

"Very good," said Mrs. Longears. "Put the stuffed rabbit on our lawn. He will be quite an ornament like a vase on the parlor mantle."

So Uncle Wiggily set the white stuffed rabbit on his hind legs in the middle of a green, grassy place and went in the bungalow to eat his supper of carrot pancakes with strawberry sauce sprinkled on the middle, and very good they were, too.

Pretty soon, coming home from where they had been playing, hopped Jingle and Jangle, Tangle and Tangle,

To-morrow's Horoscope

TUESDAY, JUNE 25, 1929

The planetary government for to-day is a bit uncertain and changeable, according to astrology.

It is primarily a rule under which those who wield authority strengthen their power. Governors and public officials should benefit.

This is a time to employ diplomacy in business transactions and to avoid antagonizing those who control capital.

It is read as an auspicious direction of the stars for seeking employment, although demand for highest qualifications in all lines of work will prevail.

Young men and young women who are starting out on life careers should choose cautiously their first positions, if the stars are really read.

While this configuration prevails there may be many errors of judgment and much inclination to put false values on persons and things.

This direction of the stars may incline persons to blame every one except themselves for their own mistakes, and for this reason may lead to quarrels.

There is an adverse sign for making new acquaintances, for it may be difficult to make a good impression under this way.

Although there is likely to be a tremendous interest in aviation and much private ownership of aeroplanes, the planetary government seems to be menacing.

Accidents and disasters may be numerous among those who travel by air, but this new mode of transportation is to become practically general by next summer, the seers prophesy.

Many distinguished visitors are foretold for the summer when foreign countries will send representatives on various missions. The evening of this day should be most auspicious for entertaining celebrities or public officials.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have some anxiety about business ventures, but the coming year should be fairly prosperous.

Children born on this day probably will be dependable and extraordinarily intelligent. The subjects of this sign generally succeed, through hard, conscientious work.

Baron Thure Cederstrom, noted genre painter, was born on this day of the month, 1843. Peter Vassilievich Bassin, Russian artist, 1798, also had this as a birthday.

(Copyright, 1929)

Buster and Custer and Scrimble and Scramble, to name only a few of the little bunny boys and girls owned by Uncle Wiggily and his wife.

"Oh, look at the new little rabbit!" cried Tangle.

"Isn't he cute?" said Tangle.

"I'm going to hug him!" exclaimed Buster.

But when this little boy rabbit picked up the white one he was much surprised, and he cried out:

"Why, he's a stuffed rabbit!"

Then all the other little bunny boys and girls gathered around and looked at and felt of the new rabbit. And one and all said:

"Why, he's only a stuffed bunny!"

"Of course he is!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he came out with some crumbs of dandelion pudding on his whiskers. "He's a stuffed, white rabbit I found in the woods. I'm going to leave him here for the little boy or girl who lost him to come and find him. And now, my dears, come in to your supper."

So Jingle and Jangle, Scrimble and Scramble, Buster and Custer and all the others hopped in to eat their supper, leaving the stuffed rabbit out on the lawn.

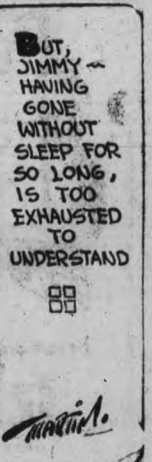

And soon after that a very queer thing happened. I'll tell you about it in the next story. Then, if the grocery cat doesn't scratch the bag of sugar and spill its sweetness all over the sidewalk, you shall hear of Uncle Wiggily and the surprised Fox.

Reformatories In U.S. Are Studied

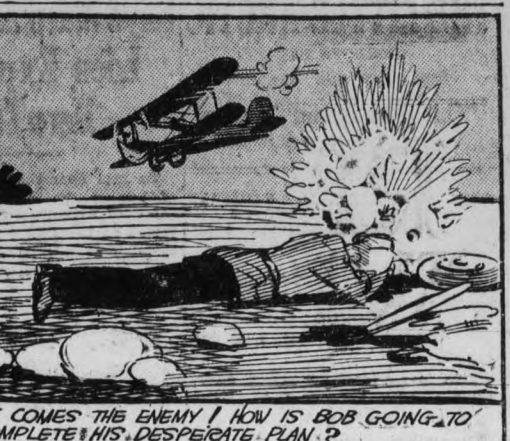

Washington, June 24.—Convinced reformatories often make bad youngsters worse and good ones weak, Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau of the United States Department of Labor, is planning a nation-wide study of the "before and after" effects of institutions for delinquent boys.

She has found information gathered second-hand indicates boys are less likely to succeed in business and other aspects of living after they have been "reformed," and has decided to supervise a first-hand investigation next fall to check up on results obtained by the best established institutions.
